2015 financial summary

Over the last three years, the National Trust for Historic Preservation has seen its total operating sources of revenue grow from $55.5 million to $60.5 million, almost 10% growth, despite one historic site moving to a co-stewardship model and creation of a new subsidiary to house its National Main Street Center. This has been primarily due to strong donor support, especially for our National Treasures and for critical technology improvements which have enhanced the reach of our programs. As shown in the charts below, the National Trust achieved an 77% programmatic efficiency, with only 11% spent on General and Administrative expenses.

Allocation of Joint Costs

The Trust conducts membership development activities that include appeals for contributions, primarily direct mail campaigns, which qualify for allocation among the functions benefited.

In 2015, the Trust incurred approximately $1,841,000 of joint costs for these activities. Approximately $1,371,000 of these costs was allocated to fund-raising and approximately $470,000 was allocated to membership outreach.

2015 donors and supporters

The National Trust is fortunate to benefit from the generous support of individuals, foundations, corporations, and other partners listed on the pages that follow. Each shares our commitment to saving America's historic places, and together, their contributions make our success possible. We are grateful for the community of dedicated friends and supporters that are helping transform the places we live into the places we love.

2015 our work

The National Trust for Historic Preservation is a privately funded nonprofit organization that works to save America's historic places. From our headquarters in Washington, D.C. and our 10 field offices, we take direct, on-the-ground action when historic sites are threatened. Our work helps build vibrant, sustainable communities. We facilitate public participation in the preservation of sites, buildings, and objects of national significance or interest. We advocate with governments to save America's heritage, and we strive to create a cultural legacy that is as diverse as the nation itself so all of us can take pride in our part of the American story.
